

POWERFUL AMERICAN RESERVES ROLL INTO GERMANY AFTER TWIN-PRONGED INVASION

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

WHEN WE SEE Allied forces battling on the soil of an already defeated and tottering Germany, it gives to wonder that the United Nations in such comparatively short time should have achieved this triumph over a military nation which came close to conquering much of the eastern hemisphere—and maybe the whole world.

There are, of course, many reasons for our success but an important one is the superior skill of Allied generals who at decisive moments have outsmarted the best brains that Prussianism could produce. In recording this we get a double satisfaction from the fact that German military leadership, taking it by and large, always has been of high order.

One doesn't make such a claim lightly, and before setting it down in this column I checked it against the observations of my friend Brig. Gen. Horace Sewell, the distinguished British military expert. He was, by the way, the youngest brigadier in the British army in the last war and holds high decorations.

Sewell concurred without reservation. He agreed, too, that outstanding reason for Allied superiority is the relative inflexibility of the German mind. It work along well defined lines—a powerful and smoothly running machine, but in a groove.

We have an excellent illustration of this in one of the Reich's foremost generals—the famous Field Marshal Rommel, of desert fame. Rommel is a great soldier, and he was so characterized to me by none less than his conqueror in North Africa—Gen. (now field marshal) Montgomery—who I was with the British forces not long after he had won the decisive battle of El Alamein. One thing that helped Montgomery take his opponent's measure was the shrewd observation that while the German was dangerously tricky he could be counted on to repeat the same tricks under certain circumstances.

The Russians, of course, providing us with many cases of outgeneraling the Nazis. Both Sewell and I picked the battle of Stalingrad as an outstanding example. This was the great engagement in which Hitler

ENEMY LOSES NORTH POLAND HUB OF LOMZA

Germans Admit Giving Up Key Rail Center; Transylvania Drive On

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Sept. 13.—Lomza, key rail center 20 miles south of East Prussia and one of the strongest German positions in North Poland, has been "given up," the German communiqué announced today.

Lomza lies on the narrow river 77 miles northeast of Warsaw. At midnight, the Russians said, the town was virtually encircled by Red troops cut through double decks of thick minefields. Its fall opens the way to the wild Masurian lake region of East Prussia.

Ostroleka, a companion base on the narrow 23 miles to the west, fell to the Russian army group of Gen. G. F. Zakharov last week.

German and Hungarian troops were said by Berlin to have smashed strong assaults in southern Transylvania on the Balkan front. Southeast of Warsaw, the Russians "achieved a penetration, supported by numerous fighter bombers and tanks," the communiqué said.

Powerful Russian tank forces when infantry emerged today from the western foothills of Transylvania and fought for control of the rail network radiating from Timisoara, 40 miles south of the pre-war Hungarian border and 75 miles north of the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade.

The Paris radio said the Red army had reached the outskirts of Sofia and that the Bulgarian capital was preparing a reception, having arrested all members of the former pro-Nazi government.

PFC. EARL VAN HORN OF LISBON KILLED

Mrs. Elsie Van Horn of 201 Chestnut st., Lisbon, today was notified by the War department of the death of her son, Pfc. Earl Van Horn, 20, on Aug. 23 in France, where he was serving with the Army engineer corps.

Enlisting Jan. 14, 1943, Pfc. Van Horn had served overseas 14 months. He was born on a farm west of Lisbon, near Hanoverton, and attended Lisbon schools.

He leaves his mother, Mrs. Elsie Van Horn of Lisbon; his father, Leon Van Horn, of R. D. 1, Hanoverton; a brother, Pvt. Clyde Dettman, with the Army in the South Pacific, and two sisters, Mrs. Violet McDewitt of Hanoverton and Mrs. Ruth Mitchell of Lisbon.

ARMY SHOW REPEAT PLANNED OCTOBER 5

Bringing the Camp Reynolds Army show back to Salem for another one-night stand, the American Legion is planning for a capacity audience for the performance in the High school auditorium Oct. 5.

The civilian production, which appeared here last month under Legion sponsorship, is being returned by popular demand.

The largest portion of the proceeds will go to purchase a new set of costumes for the cast so that a new production can make a tour of army camps this fall.

Another percentage will be used to revamp and improve the present Servicemen's Honor Roll in front of the Legion home.

Legionnaires say the present honor roll is too small and is in bad condition after several years' weathering.

The production includes the same cast but will be an entirely different show than the one originally given here.

W. STATE ST. PAVING IS STARTED TODAY

Resurfacing of W. State st. was begun today by the Ohio Road Improvement Co. of Columbus, marking the last lap of the street improvement program in Salem this summer.

Work was completed early this morning on E. State st., and previous jobs have been closed on N. and S. Ellsworth avenues and Mill st.

Service Director Frank Wilson said he expected the work to be completed by the end of this week.

MATT KLEIN AUTO BODY AND FENDER REBUILDING, 813 NEW-GARDEN AVE. WILL BE CLOSED ALL NEXT WEEK.

'Whiz Kid' Amazes Engineers

Shown assembling the 500-odd parts of an aircraft "injection carburetor" is 11-year-old Jack Butler of Chicago. This is part of his job as a volunteer "guinea pig" to test the effectiveness of photographic "exploded views"—visual aids used to prevent guesswork in war production and armed services manuals. Jack amazed engineers by assembling the injection carburetor in 90 minutes.

Youth Center Opens Saturday After Football Dance Friday

With final decorations completed, furniture in place, the dance floor waxed, final touches going on the "cock bar" and registration getting under way at the Salem Jay-Teen in the Arbaugh building today.

Junior Chamber of Commerce members are hard at work preparing for the formal opening of the recreational center Saturday night.

Students and teen-agers, anyone 13 through 19 years old, should secure membership applications at the center between 7:30 and 10:30 tonight.

Friday evening, after the Salem-Sebring football game, a Victory dance will be held, it is announced. The center will be open from 7:30 to 11:45 p. m. Friday.

Present plans call for Jay-Teen hours of from 7:30 to 10:30 p. m. on Wednesdays and from 7:30 to 11:45 p. m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

The applications, which must be completed before a Jay-Teen membership can be granted, asks a prospect to list his name, address, birth date, age, class in school and requires the signature of a parent before membership will be considered.

Advisory Board Planned
Dues, as established by the Chamber Jay-Teen board, are set at $2 per year, payable semi-annually. If a teen-ager wishes to enjoy the center, but is not a member, guest admittance per night will be 10 cents.

As an advisory group for the center, Junior Chamber men are planning a board of trustees, to be composed of representatives from various other local civic organizations. A student council also will be established to act as a direct governing body for the teen-agers.

As a temporary set of conduct and membership regulations, Jay-teens have established rules to be enforced during the initial operations of the Jay-Teen.

Emphasizing the fact that at least two Junior Chamber men and their wives will be chaperoning the center at all times, President Rudy Dinner at the Masonic temple at 6:30 will precede the lodge meeting. This special event is being arranged by Ed Jenkins, one of the two deputies from this district. Ned Massa is master of Perry lodge.

HIGH SCHOOL PTA TO SPONSOR DRAMA

Plans were made by the Salem High school Parent-Teacher association, at a meeting last night in the building, to sponsor a production by the Salem Players club in December. Other Parent-Teacher groups are cooperating in the project which is expected to provide funds for the work of the various units.

President Charles McCorkhill named a committee to work with Junior Chamber of Commerce members in activities at the Jay-Teen youth center. The members are Mrs. Fred Koenreich, Mrs. R. T. Holzbach, Mrs. Frank Mangus, Mrs. Ethel Headrick and Mrs. N. I. Walken.

The program featured a round table discussion, led by Judge Joel H. Sharp, on the work of the Parent-Teacher organization. Members of the group participated.

The next meeting will be held Oct. 10.

BATTLESHIPS, PLANES RAID VITAL PALAU

New Sledgehammer Blows Also Fall On Celebes, Halmahera

(By Associated Press)
U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Sept. 13.—Japan's deteriorating island Fortresses of Palau, Celebes and Halmahera, which shield the southern Philippines, have been dealt sledgehammer blows by battleships, bombers and rocket-firing aircraft operating in concert from the Southwest and Central Pacific.

The rising pitch of destruction visited on the Japanese bastions was evident in communiques from Adm. Chester Nimitz yesterday and Gen. Douglas MacArthur today.

Palau, 600 miles east of Davao, came under carrier aircraft attack Sunday (U. S. time). Next day, battleships and cruisers moved in to shell the islands. Planes dumped 120 tons of bombs on buildings, gun positions and coast defenses at Babelthup, Peleliu and Angaur, principal islands of the group, Nimitz reported.

More than 150 rockets burst among defensive positions during the two-day carrier force attack, wrecking many installations.

Recalls Guam Invasion

The entrance of battleships into the Palau raids was reminiscent of pre-invasion blows at Guam to the northeast. Sixteen-inch battlewagon rifles, waiting until carrier planes and lesser surface warships had pounded the island for 10 straight days, opened up five days before Guam was invaded.

Palau's islands were raided on 17 days in August and on six days of this month.

(The Nimitz communiqué made no mention of a carrier task force assault on the central Philippines, as reported yesterday by Radio Tokyo.)

MacArthur's airmen executed a record 202-ton bomb assault Sunday on Dutch Celebes, the big island lying west of New Guinea and south of the Philippines. Near Manado on the northeast coast.

ROTARY WILL HOLD PICNIC ON TUESDAY

Arrangements for the annual Rotary club picnic next Tuesday at the Salem Country club were announced by Chairman W. H. Matthews at the Rotary meeting Tuesday night in the Memorial building.

Rotarians and their families will attend the outing which will feature a program of sports and games and a dinner at 6 p. m.

Yesterday's program highlight was an interesting account by Chairman Clyde McKee of a bicycle trip he made in 1933 from Warren to Chicago to attend the world's fair then in progress. The 426-mile journey was made in four days, the speaker recalled, recounting his experiences on the trip, which he made alone when a group of friends who planned to go, failed to take the trip.

Sergt. Don Freed of Salt Lake City, Utah, a guest at the meeting, entertained with a vocal number.

Lieut. Wentz Enjoys Piloting Jack Benny Troupe In Pacific

Lieut. (Sgt.) Charles Wentz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arch H. Wentz, 620 E. Third st., has drawn what he terms "an enjoyable assignment" while in the South Pacific in a Navy utility squadron.

His latest job, he wrote his parents recently, has been to fly Jack Benny, Carol Landis, Larry Adler and Martha Tilton and their company of entertainers to and from the various camps throughout the Pacific war area.

Lieut. Wentz, who attended Miami university before entering the service in 1941, said his job of piloting the ship the popular actors traveled in, "was far easier than the tough grind they had to go through." He said the troupe went from island to island, giving several shows each place and added that "all of them are wonderful people."

A Navy pilot on an amphibious PBV ship before being sent overseas, the Salem boy has been assigned to a Navy utility squadron in the Pacific and is called upon for any number of miscellaneous duties. Utility crews are assigned flights

NOTE REVEALS MINERS' FATE

Crews Come Upon Bodies of 47 of 66 Men Entombed Last July 5

(By Associated Press)
BELLAIRES, Sept. 13.—A note penciled by one of 66 coal miners trapped by fire in Powhatan pit last July 5 disclosed today how the entombed men grew weaker, but continued "trusting in God" as deadly gas seeped through the barricade they erected while awaiting rescue.

Crews working with oxygen masks came upon 47 bodies last night and brought out four of them this morning. A fifth body was recovered from another part of the mine several days ago.

The underground fire first was reported shortly before noon July 5 but miners were unable to control it. A section of the pit then was sealed to smother the flames. The 66 men were trapped behind the fire.

The note, signed by H. Hartline a 47-year-old miner whose given name was Dorsey, was written on a pad he usually carried. It read: "July 5, 4:40 p. m. Dirt stopping all erected. We were late as fresh air continued to come up C-north air course. Some men tried to go through 7-right to B-north, but failed as entry was so badly fallen. Men have returned to room in 7-right and are resting. Some men

Nazis Report Defense Line Outpost Falls

BULLETIN
LONDON, Sept. 13.—The German radio said tonight that the "Americans have captured an outpost of the west wall," but did not specify where the Siegfried line had been dented.

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Powerful American reinforcements rolled today into double invasions of Germany carrying within 37 miles of the Rhine, while two or more other U. S. columns beat to or near the frontier of the Reich's war-ravaged "holy soil."

Supreme headquarters imposed security silence on the two lunges of the U. S. First army which cracked across the Nazi border from Luxembourg to northwest of Trier, and from Belgium east of Eupen. But fresh forces were being poured into these thrusts 65 miles apart.

Other first army forces struck 15 miles beyond Bastogne into the northern tip of Luxembourg, reaching near Clervaux, three miles from Germany. This was the biggest disclosed gain of the day.

A front dispatch told of a lightning, 60-minute thrust from Aumetz to the Our river border of Luxembourg and Germany and within a mile of the Siegfried line. This presumably referred to the U. S. Third army, separate from the force at Clervaux. Still another threat of more crossings into Germany was posed by Americans who captured Malmédy, 13 miles below Eupen, and eight miles from the Belgian-German border.

There was no news of the invasion northwest of Trier since the initial announcement it had carried.

BULLETIN

ROETIGEN, Germany, Sept. 12.—(Delayed)—American tanks and doughboys have broken quickly through the primary enemy defenses in this area and now are assaulting anti-tank obstacles and pill boxes just beyond this town.

ried five miles into Germany. Nor were there disclosures of the crossing 65 miles to the north, beyond announcement it had gone six miles east of Eupen. Here the Americans were within 10 miles south of Aachen, a Siegfried line stronghold.

BEGIN GERMAN AIR ATTACKS

Two Counter-attacks
Twice the Germans counter-attacked, but they were thrown back or held.

A new American army—the Ninth—was disclosed to be fighting in an undesignated sector. The junction of the Third and Seventh armies was strengthened.

The Third army—like the first—was knocking at German defenses in multiple threats, any of which might explode into a full-force onslaught.

Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton's men had cleared almost all the west bank of the Moselle, and were building a broad bridgehead on the east bank between Pont-A-Mousson and Nancy. The German high command said the Americans were advancing across the Upper Moselle toward Lunéville, 15 miles southeast of Nancy.

Metz was being shelled. To the north more heights were won commanding Thionville, 10 miles from Germany.

The British Second army steadily was expanding its break-through of the Albert canal line in a wedge into Holland. It built up an attack flank within 60 miles of Dusseldorf and Essen. The large Dutch road center of Eindhoven appeared to be a first objective.

Lt.-Gen. Courtney Hodges' First army also was almost on the Dutch border, and was within four miles of Maastricht.

LEETONIA OFFICER GIVEN BRONZE STAR

LEETONIA, Sept. 13.—First Lieut. Edward W. Ziegler, son of Paul Ziegler, R. D. 2, has been awarded the Bronze star for valorous conduct in action against the enemy while serving with the third "Marine" division during their participation in the Sicilian campaign. He was decorated while the division was on the Fifth Army front in Italy.

While adjusting fire from a battery observation post, Lieut. Ziegler was subjected to heavy enemy artillery fire, some rounds which landed in his immediate vicinity. Exposing himself to this concentrated fire, the officer continued to adjust and observe his own fire missions and as a result of his observation, he silenced an enemy battery which was shelling friendly observation positions, the citation reads.

The Suit and the Cloth

It is possible that the 56,000,000 jobs specified by a special committee on post-war planning of the house of representatives will be forthcoming. But the committee mentions a reason for this large job total which will make some thoughtful Americans think twice.

It is the total required to produce the income to pay the $20,000,000,000 annual tax load which the committee expects after the war. Here is a strange twist in the circumstances of the times—that politicians now are talking about the necessity of jobs to meet the government's operating expense, as well as the individual's needs.

The joker is the cheerful assumption that the government's expense is subject to infinite expansion, though the individual must control his needs and keep them under a top limit. Twenty billion dollars is more than twice as much as the figure for the highest pre-war year, and it is by no means largest of the various estimates on annual operating costs for the federal establishment. With a continuation of profligacy, the figure might grow indefinitely, with taxpayers struggling to keep up with it. And what if 56,000,000 jobs can't be created?

The adage about cutting the suit to fit the cloth has been revised. The New Deal version is: Go ahead and we'll borrow the cloth.

Day by Day

Victory in Europe is to be designed in official jargon as V-E day. The letters, appearing in the report of James F. Byrnes, director of war mobilization, on reconversion plans, are an abbreviation for Victory-Europe. Victory in Japan will be V-J.

Both designations are obvious, fortunately, in contrast with D-day, which flooded newspapers with inquiries. This growing custom of designating days by letters, instead of by name, has come a long way since the public first heard about plans for (Mobilization)-day, years before the beginning of the war.

In the normal course of events after the war we probably will have, for the old-fashioned days of the week S-B, M-day, Tu-day, W-day, Th-day, F-day, and S-B. (Saturday-bath)-day. It no longer will be 20 shopping days till Christmas, but C minus 20. And the morning after New Year's eve will be X plus one.

Thanksgiving will be T-day, of course. We will celebrate independence on I-day. A for arbor, C for Columbus, L for Labor and B for Bargain. Anyone who knows the alphabet can do it. This is what the New Dealers mean when they talk about making progress. Soon it will be E-day. E for Exodus.

No Spoofing

The congressional dilemma over taking a recess for electioneering purposes is silly on the face of it because the fact is that if the house and senate don't recess most of their members will go home anyway. The absenteeism has started already and will get worse.

The fact is—and with due credit to the world-shaking importance of whatever legislation might be acted between now and election day—that the best place for representatives and senators to be this fall is back where the people live—away from the Washington high pressure area.

They should get around and talk to their constituents—all their constituents. For every spokesman who yells in their ear they should seek out the opinions of 10 others who don't have spokesmen. It isn't good for legislators to stay in Washington too much. Decidedly, it isn't good for them or the people to spoof each other by pretending that congress is going to remain in session when everybody knows that the session is in name only and that most of the members are back home where they long to be each November in the even-numbered years.

Realities On Both Sides

The European war at this stage is largely a process of comprehending realities on both sides. The Germans have comprehended the reality for instance, that when their superiority in weapons is gone the superman doctrine which seemed so credible in 1940 becomes ridiculous.

The Allies, and particularly the Americans who are on the scene, are discovering that Germans can be beaten, that some are tough, some easy, that they are not fanatics, that they are on the whole not greatly different from soldiers of other nationalities. They also are discovering that the German air force still is strong enough to put up enough planes to get more than 100 shot down on two consecutive days, that it still is a long way to the Rhine, that the fortifications in the Rhineland are by no means imaginary and that optimists back home who imagine the war is going to be over before next Sunday are the counterpart of optimists in Germany who still think a German victory is in the bag.

There were realities in Normandy. Certainly there have been realities in the deeds of the air forces which have been fighting Germans so long. But it seems likely that the first great wave of reality for the United States may be the weeks and months immediately ahead while American fighting men are engaged in the climactic battle of the western front.

The Stars Say

For Thursday, September 14

STIRRING events mark this day, according to the lunar and mutual aspects of major planets. While there may be a deep spading up from long static and crystallized conditions, yet the breaking away from radical fastnesses may be spectacular or sensational, affecting romance, celebrations, parties, possibly to announce engagements or weddings. There may be opposition from elders, with minor upsets or delays.

Adhering to new, original procedures may placate antagonisms, with kindness and good will. Change, travel, dealing with the public should succeed, but shun extravagances with funds as well as energies. Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of commotion, change and spectacular doings, probably in connection with parties, engagements or weddings. While there may be much joy and good fortune yet it is probable there may be lack of approval from elders or the family. These may be compromised by a show of good nature and friendliness and not stubbornness. All forms of excess and extravagance should be avoided, for most lucrative and happy results. Innovation and novelty, with well organized plans should assist.

A child born on this day should have much originality with inventive genius, sustained by sound ideas and sturdy efforts. It should have a progressive probably spectacular and romantic career.

The Battle of Germany

By James Thrasher

The battle of Germany has begun. For the first time in our history American forces are engaging the Germans on their own "sacred soil." It is a new chapter in a history which has been repeating itself at an accelerated rate, with sons of the doughboys of the first AEF rolling almost unopposed over ground where their fathers fought and died to gain a few yards. Now that history has run past the point where it ended in World War I.

It is well for the world and for Germany that this is happening. It is time that the German people saw and felt the scourge of war which their armies have loosed upon Europe twice in a generation. Perhaps if they had seen and felt it in 1918 this present war would not have come.

But the German people did not see the breakup of their military machine on their very doorstep. Thus the Kaiser's armies were able to straggle home in a semblance of order, at least enough for Hitler to be able to put across his myth that the war had been lost at home, not in the field.

World War I was lost in the field, and three months before the armistice. It was then that the general staff lost heart, went on the defensive, and urged the government to seek peace. Many military historians believe there was considerable fight left in the German army at the end. But its general staff preferred to quit and save the homeland from devastation.

Certainly the German military situation was desperate, and no one can blame the Allies for ending the struggle. The cost in life had been frightful. Even those who saw that Germany needed a further lesson could not deny a world that was weary and longed for peace.

Today Germany's situation is again perilous. In many ways it is worse than at this time in 1918, when the Germans were fighting on only one front and their allies were still in the war. But Adolf Hitler is not a Ludendorff or a Hindenburg. He knows that he is hated and doomed. And conscience has made him more desperate than cowardly. Though the end may come quickly, it is certain that if Hitler remains in power he will try to drag Germany down with him in a bloody and lingering struggle.

There will be a tragic cost of American and Allied soldiers' lives to be paid in the battle of Germany. But it is a sacrifice that must be made to erase from German minds the poisonous thought that they are invincible and inviolate.

A Disease Caused by Infected Ticks

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HAVE been requested by the Editor of the High Point, North Carolina, "Enterprise" to discuss Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever. He states that there have been several cases reported in his neighborhood. This points up the warning that it is no longer an exclusively Rocky Mountain disease. It has now been reported in 42 states, the exceptions being the New England States and Michigan. It is most frequent in the Rocky Mountain states where it was first described. Of the eastern states it has been reported most frequently from Maryland, North Carolina and Virginia. The average number of cases occurring each year in the United States is probably in excess of 600.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever is an acute, infectious, but not contagious disease, transmitted to human beings exclusively by bites from infected ticks. In the early days in the west this relationship was recognized and it was called "tick fever."

Varieties of Ticks

There are several varieties of wood ticks which can transmit the disease—the common dog tick and rabbit tick among them. The disease is not primarily one of human beings, but of animals, and a reservoir of the disease is kept going in the bodies of such wild animals as raccoons, skunks and rabbits and possibly domestic cattle, horses and dogs. Human beings pick up the ticks when they are in the woods or garden or possibly from domestic animals. Very few of the ticks which you or your dog may pick up during a woodland stroll, however, are infected.

The ticks transmit the virus, or germ, of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever to humans, or other animals, when they bite. They also become infected themselves by biting an infected animal. After feeding they fall off the host and seek shelter in the bushes and attach themselves to man or animal as he passes by.

Ticks carry the virus of the disease for long periods. After hibernation in the spring the virus in their bodies is attenuated and a bite at this time does not produce infection in a victim. But in the course of the summer the virus becomes activated in the tick's body, and it is then dangerous. This accounts for the seasonal distribution of the disease—in summer and early fall.

Symptoms of Fever

The symptoms of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever in humans seem on abruptly with fever and usually a hard chill. Headache and muscle ache are very severe. On the second to fourth day the eruption appears with thickly distributed red, sometimes raised, spots on the feet, legs, hands and arms first, later the entire body. Complete prostration and mental confusion are common.

The treatment is general rather than specific. In other words, no drug or serum which has a certain record of cure is known. Rest, bed, liquid diet and supportive measures are the first line of defense. Convalescent serum and a form of anti-serum, are sometimes helpful. Dr. George Baker, of Casper, Wyoming, has used neosphenamine in metaphene solution in the vein with increasing success.

Prevention would be possible if all wood ticks could be destroyed, but that is impossible. Those who have to go in wooded country where Spotted Fever is known to occur should wear heavy overall clothing wrapped around the body so tick attachment is impossible. No successful tick repellent is known. A tick fever vaccine has been used successfully as a preventive.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. A. S.: I have some sugar in the urine and have been advised to eliminate all starches from my diet. Will you give me a list of foods to avoid?

A.: You do not need to eliminate all starches from the diet. It depends on how much sugar you have in your urine and how much carbohydrate you can utilize. In general you can eat meat, eggs, cheese, green vegetables, some fruits, gelatin desserts, tea or coffee without sugar. You should avoid concentrated sugars and starches like granulated sugar, bread, cakes, ice cream, pies, potatoes, and very sweet fruits.

L. R.: Would you tell me why friendship bracelets tarnish so readily on me? They are sterling silver. My friends who have bracelets like mine do not have that trouble. Is it because I have too much acid in my system?

Answer: When the perspiration contains sulphur in excess it forms a sulphur compound with silver which causes the tarnishing. When a doctor gives a patient a medicine containing sulphur in the veins any silver ornament the patient is wearing tarnishes. Nickel ornaments tarnish from chlorides in the perspiration.

E. M.: I am a woman 59 years old and have been bothered with bad tonsils. One doctor has advised me it would be perfectly safe to have them out, while another has told me it would be dangerous because haemorrhages would probably develop.

A.: Tonsil removal in the hands of a competent operator is perfectly safe. Don't go to an operator who would "probably" do an operation resulting in a haemorrhage.

A. R.: Is there any treatment for auricular fibrillation besides digitalis?

Answer: Digitalis is the heaven sent specific for the condition, but rest and a light diet are necessary adjuncts.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetics," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

• SO THEY SAY

The time to check a new war preparation program is at its beginning. This requires quick, decisive action—strong measures in case of continued minor infringements. This is the lesson of the 1930s.

—Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president Brookings Institution.

Some day the Germans may be able to prove they think a man matters, that we all are members of the same human race, that they are not out to run the world. Until then, handshakes and pats-walshy stuff are out.

—Stars and Stripes, Army newspaper, on fraternization.

With the end of the war in Germany this agency will be in a position to meet the man-power requirements of war industry without the controls which have been in effect in recent months.

—WMC Chairman Paul V. McNutt.

THE REST OF MY LIFE WITH YOU

Copr. 1943, by author
by Faith Baldwin
Dist. by King Features

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

In July, over the Fourth, Matthew was with his mother. He was separately tired.

Mary said, "You look half dead."

"I'm fine," Judith said something about swimming.

"Anyone there?"

"She has a crowd over for the tennis."

"Include me out," he quoted. "I'm too battered and aged to cope with a bunch of kids. I'll just sit in a partial coma and look at you. Where's Lynn? I was amazed at he didn't show up, thought I did come with him."

"He went to Rita's." His mother said, after a moment. "They had gone to the sanitarium. She—Mrs. Loring, hasn't been so well. She's dying, they said—she had pneumonia this winter."

Mary was conscious of a sharp, tingling sensation as she said it. She had never known Nan Loring and never would. She couldn't even imagine her. She felt even astonished and a little bit angry. I have thought of Lynn all these years as belonging to me... to his daughter, Rita. I thought, but after Rita to me. My friend, not like a brother, like a sister, not like a brother, that's what, perhaps at first but not after a year or so... I've been so selfish, I thought, taking him for granted. Lately he had looked old and very fatigued, and his heart seemed to see him. He had tried the very important cases. He had one and had won two. After his victory he had come to her and said, "Let's celebrate." After that he had simply come and sat beside her in the apartment and smoked quietly and tried to tell her a conclusion. Why had he lost it, when he had been so good? He had thought aloud and she had listened.

Judith came down the path and Matthew sitting there, his dark and back against the chair. She held him so much that she shook her head. All that had begun, thought, the night of her accident when she had opened her eyes and seen him standing beside her, patient, smiling.

At winter, all spring, they had each other at frequent intervals and he had grown into a habit of telling her things, about his work. Perhaps Aunt Ella knew the medical books Judith had read and hidden, pondered over and studied.

Up at Villa Capri that summer Judith had seemed very happy. At Ella watched her with shrewd, uncommittal eyes, her mother anxiously, and Mary Norman with the trepidation. She went out a good deal, there were throngs of people calling for a swim, a drink, a cocktail, but young Mary came in and found her son asleep but both were awakened some hours later by a frantic pounding at the door. It was Judith. When Matthew reached the door she was gasping.

The distraught Judith cried, "Is she dead?"

"No, she's not," he said sharply, at boy's blind as a bat."

"I think so—under the circumstances," snapped Ella.

"If he is right for her," stressed Ella, "he will know it, too, in time." Ella looked across the terrace to tennis courts where Judy and they were playing a set before noon tea, and remarked, "I think so."

"Fiddlesticks," snapped Ella. "If he is right for her," stressed Ella, "he will know it, too, in time." Ella looked across the terrace to tennis courts where Judy and they were playing a set before noon tea, and remarked, "I think so."

Map above shows Allies' quintuple drive on Fortress Germany, and the commanders of the armies involved. Operations of British 2nd Army and U. S. 7th Army may develop into giant pincers at opposite ends of Siegfried Line while Patton's 3rd Army pins down bulk of German reserves with threat of frontal assault breakthrough on Moselle river sector.

FUR COAT FINE INVESTMENT IF GIVEN GOOD CARE

Furs are a good investment, as a rule. All furs rate care and practical treatment, so don't sit on your furs, when there is no need; pat snow and rain off them, and dry away from heat; keep face and neck makeup away from fur necklines. Clean and store furs, and mend as seasons change. Three stunning new models are shown above: The model left is a whitehead silver fox. It comes from the platina fox family, and is white, not platinum gray. Center, a nutria coat cut with very wide and handsome shoulder, and big, wide sleeves. Right, a beautiful mink model in seven-eighths length with a new trim—braided pelts which make encircling tuxedo collar and wide cuffs.

Bringing Up Baby In The Right Way

WE SEE far too many mothers who are always nagging and scolding their children, who yank them when they cross the street or get into buses, and who slap them whenever they do something mother doesn't like. These mothers may be tired and cross, but they do not understand that they make their children cross and irritable, too, and make things harder for themselves.

Household Hints

- To keep skin soft, try removing makeup with almond oil, then cleansing face with a mild soap containing lanolin.
- Be sure to label oxalic acid, used in bleaching, as a poison to keep it far out of the children's reach.
- Shower curtains of duck or canvas are particularly susceptible to mildew attack, so wash them frequently.
- To remove cotton scorch, bleach with a chlorine bleach using three-fourth cup to a gallon of warm soapy water.
- Shelled nuts, bread, coffee, and chocolate all keep better in the refrigerator.
- Children's shoes should be bought about one-half size larger than the foot.
- Mend small rips in clothing, pillow cases and sheets before washing.
- To give an old baby carriage a new appearance, upholster it in gay quilted chintz.
- There is no practical difference in the warmth of cotton or silk hosiery when they are the same knit and thickness.

If you let yourself go occasionally and slap or spank when you are excited or upset, it probably isn't too serious, provided your child is left with the feeling that he has been punished for something he has done but that you love him anyway.

But if you find you are punishing and slapping repeatedly, you may be sure you are on the wrong track.

Spanking may make your child angry and resentful, or humiliated and ashamed. Or he may become hardened and pay no attention to it; or just so afraid he doesn't trust himself to do anything.

None of these feelings helps him to learn what he did wrong or why, or how to act the next time.

The best that can be said for spanking is that it sometimes clears the air. But it isn't worth the price and it usually doesn't work. Copyright by the Child Study Association of America, Inc., and reprinted by permission.

In accepting the right of way the state department, has announced that the new road will be one of the first post-war projects in Columbiana county.

The highway is to be one of the finest and will be built well away from the hillside and the danger of falling rocks, which, in the past, have caused danger and obstructed traffic.

No Change in Gas Rations Until War In Europe Ends

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—No changes in gasoline rationing can be expected before the end of the war in Europe, the Office of War Information said today in a 7,000-word report on the crude oil and gasoline supply.

How much additional gasoline will then be available for civilians will depend on how much the Army and Navy will need after Germany surrenders. Estimates are being prepared now by military authorities.

OWI said.

The report says that when more civilian gasoline does become available, the rationing for trucks and buses will be increased first.

Next in line will be "B" card holders who use their cars in the course of business—not merely between home and work—and who aren't getting as much as they need.

OLD PITTSBURGH ERA IS REVEALED

Musty Courthouse Records Reveal 'Past' of Pennsylvania City

(By United Press)
PITTSBURGH — This city's history and much of its childhood can be found in six old court volumes recently discovered in a dusty alcove in the clerk of county courts office.

Dating from 1762 to 1801, these weatherbeaten and yellowed volumes list accurately the doings and "carrying-on" of pioneer Pittsburghers and the origination of many present-day street names.

For example, in 1764, John Washington, reputedly a cousin of our first President, was fined five pounds for assault and battery.

Other persons of that day included Jacob Negley, from whom Negley Ave. received its name; Edward Et. Clair, original owner of all the land that is now St. Clair Township; John Kennedy, original landowner of Kennedy Township; James Bedford, where Bedford Ave. derived its title, and Peter ood, part of the Wood family that owned all the land now facing Wood St. in Wilkinsburg. Also, Jeremiah Wilkins, Township, the Snowden, Milton, and other families.

Growth of the City

Not until the opening of the second book is the growth of the city plainly visible. In it is a proposal—carried out later in another part—to extend Fifth Ave. from the Quarry (now Soho) to Grant Hill (now the Court House), and to the Market Place, which then was at the foot of Wood Run (now Wood St.). This book also records the proposal for grading and widening of a "new-path" at the foot of Fifth Ave. at Wood Run to Fort Duquesne, the present-day Blockhouse.

Pittsburgh was taking shape. But not without its wrangles, court scenes and political squabbles.

Strangely enough, not a few women "faced" the judge. A Grace Haverhill, 1765 version of Gypsy Rose Lee, was fined for "biting" her skirt in public beyond the line of decency. The finely written Spencerian hand did not explain the court's opinion of what termed the "line." Amanda Somers was fined for "acting unladylike" in the Market Place.

The third book lists quite clearly the pound sterling cancellation for our present monetary unit... a subtle way of saying we won the Revolutionary War.

Curfew at Eight

"Rough-houses" are found throughout the fourth book, together with appointments of patrols and curfew police to "quieten the dangers of street brawls, break up chicken thieves," and "clear the streets at curfew hour"—which, in that day was 8 p. m. Many of our forefathers paid $2, $5, and even $10 for "trapping" after curfew.

Number four and five are filled with fines and sentences for "smuggling sheep" and "trafficking in unpaid-for goods."

Odd names, none to be found in our present-day directories, graced many pages. Some are Hunnery, Oom, Gunney, Baklighter, Sawd, Sewn, Meddle, Lampkin, Hober, Kingsmen, Kingslaw, Lallyslipper, Jogg.

The sixth book is incomplete, but it records the fact that it was against the law for a man to "unduly aggravate" his wife, and for the wife to "unduly nag" her husband. A Sarah Longhorn was ducked in the river for "prolonging" nagging, but there is no reference as to the cure.

Left to Guard Jap Safe, Marines Are Forgotten

Four days later, the same Marines were discovered guarding the safe. They would have starved on post, had it not been for some of their outfit's trucks which passed by and tossed them out rations now and then.

Watch School Buses, Is Timely Advice of Motor Club Manager

Drivers approaching school buses stopped on the highway to receive or discharge school children, must stop not less than 10 feet from the bus, according to A. P. Morris, manager of the Columbiana County Motor club.

Most drivers realize they must stop when approaching the school bus from the rear, Morris explains, but few seem to know that they must stop when approaching the bus from the front.

According to the state highway patrol, this stopping is necessary, even when automobiles are operating on a divided highway. There is always the chance that a youngster will run out in front or in back of the bus to get across the roadway and unless traffic in both directions is stopped, an accident may result.

Many school buses are using school bus safety patrols and these youngsters are an added safety measure in protecting school bus riders. Drivers should obey the law and use additional precaution when in the vicinity of school buses.

Natives In Burma Mourn Loss of Mission Worker Who Lived With Them for 27 Years

By JACK GUINN
United Press Correspondent

STILWELL'S HEADQUARTERS, North Burma — Underneath the waters of the muddy Mogaung river lies the body of one of Burma's strangest men, a Johnny Appleseed of a missionary who spent 27 years in Burma teaching the natives how to plant and grow American vegetables and died trying to resettle the natives who had been driven out of their homes by the Japanese.

This man, who drowned on July 14 when he was swept away in the raging currents of the monsoon-flooded Mogaung river, was Brayton C. Case, who always listed his next of kin as the American Baptist Foreign Missionary society, 192 Madison ave., New York.

Case was drowned in the Indawgl lake area of North Burma while on a trip down the Mogaung river to see about resettling natives in territory which had been won back from the Japanese by the Allies.

Wore Heavy Boots

The motor stopped on the boat on which Case was riding, according to reports, and he attempted to swim ashore. He was wearing heavy rubber boots for walking in the deep Burma mud, and failed to remove them when he jumped into the swift current. The boots filled with water and made it impossible for Case to swim. The current swept him 100 yards down the river before two British soldiers, who jumped into the water in an attempt to save him, could reach him. They almost drowned before they made it to shore.

Probably the last American to see Case alive, the officer who put him on the boat, First Lieut. Robert T. Lindsey of Dallas, Tex., and Tucson, Ariz., said, "Mr. Case was not afraid of that river, and that's probably what killed him."

Case was well known to American troops in Burma and was a frequent visitor to Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's combat headquarters. He conducted the funeral service for the first American dead in the first official American cemetery in Burma.

Walked Everywhere

Lindsey said Case was "about six-foot-two, a great big, long-legged rawboned man." He walked everywhere he went, "all over the Himalaya mountain range," according to First Lieut. Richard W. White of Macon, Ga., carrying a 30-pound sack of seeds for his native friends in addition to his other equipment. One story around Stilwell's headquarters is that a group of officers made a hike over certain sections of the mountains in Burma and sent back a report containing the recommendation that no officer over the age of 30 should be permitted to make that walk. Then they discovered that Case, whose age is between 55 and 60, had been making this same walk, carrying all his equipment and his seeds.

Lindsey said that Case "knew every dialect in Burma." For a time, he conducted a school for American officers and taught them the rudiments of Burmese and lectured them on how to get along with the natives and how to survive in the jungle. He showed them what wild plants were edible and which were poisonous.

But his main work was with the natives. He showed them how to clear sections of the jungle, how to plant seeds, such as tomatoes, potatoes, corn, and then showed them the advantages of digging with an American hoe and raking with an American rake, a violent departure from established custom to which the natives did not always immediately take.

Herded Natives

As Stilwell's forces moved across North Burma, Case went right along with them, herding his natives along and setting them resettled in villages and talking them into beginning gardens which would make them self-sufficient. Officers at Stilwell's headquarters said that "Mr. Case used to worry us to death for permission to go somewhere—but you couldn't get mad at him, you had to admire him for his persistence."

His persistence and his desire to be always pushing forward caused his death. Lindsey said that when he put Case into the boat on the morning of July 14, he told him the river had not been cleared for travel, that he did not think it safe for the missionary to travel.

"Well, Mr. Case just grunted and said: 'I got to go' and climbed in the boat. That's the way he was, abrupt like that."

Nobody knew much about Case's private life. Nobody knows, not even officials at headquarters, how old he was. They don't know whether he had any family or any relatives. But they know he had friends.

There are hundreds of natives throughout North Burma who will mourn the death of Missionary Case.

Blonde Tornado

ROCKFORD, Ill. — Three Rockford policemen were given medical aid for injuries received while taking Mrs. Margie Stowe, 19, blonde, to headquarters in a squad car following a tavern argument. She was charged with breaking Detective William Laird's glasses, cutting him about the face, breaking a leg of Officer Omar Showalter and kicking Detective George Lane in the head. The officers also charged that she broke a window of the squad car.

GI'S IN FAR EAST INSTALL, OPERATE RADIO STATIONS

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON — Six broadcasting stations set up in the Far Eastern theater have raised the morale of American troops working and fighting in the unfamiliar lands of Burma, India and China, according to Maj. Henry M. Jackson of the Army's Morale Services Division.

To prove his point, he said Indian cities have been swept clean of receiving sets, which can no longer be bought or rented.

He promised, however, that the shortage will be met by hundreds of small "tropicalized" sets now being sent in by the Special Services division of the Army.

Jackson, who lives at the Alta Mira hotel, Sausalito, Calif., has returned from four months in India, where he not only supervised the setting up of the stations now in operation, but outlined plans for eight more to be constructed.

"We are putting in small stations with 50-watt transmitters and a range of between 15 and 30 miles," Jackson said. "We can install 10 small stations for the cost of one big one, and the small station makes possible the use of local talent which the men want."

Jackson then explained that soldiers like to hear voices of men they know coming over the loudspeaker. "It gives each man a personal interest in the program," he added.

Everyone Helps Out

"It looks as though half the men in every post are doing something in connection with our radio shows. They write scripts, direct plays and devise their own performances. The other half of the post is the audience."

"The stations all broadcast about 120 hours a week. About 78 hours are utilized by local talent and 42 hours are taken by transcribed shows which come in from the States. The men hear Jack Benny, Bob Hope and Bing Crosby regularly."

Radio stations were set up because, Jackson said, the sets the men brought in with them "could not pick up American shortwave programs and the native music is hardly of hit-parade caliber."

"The result was we had to go to work. The first stations were compounded of bits of wire and glass and odds and ends that some fellows were able to fit together successfully."

U. S. Fliers Are Aided By Sensitive Alimeter

TETERBORO, N. J.—American flyers skimming over the hedgerows in France in P-38's at better than 300-mile-an-hour speeds to strafe Nazi concentrations use an autimeter so sensitive that it will register the difference between the floor and a kitchen table.

The device contains more than 120 parts, many so tiny that they can be hidden under a finger nail, assembled into a gear and linkage system which translates a one-eighth inch movement of a tiny diaphragm into 30 revolutions of a pointer on a dial, according to R. P. Lansing, vice president, Bendix aviation Corp., which designed and is producing these alimeters.

Alliance Squad Outclassed 12-0 In Practice Tilt With Salem

Barrett's First Stringers, Obviously Superior To Aviators, Take Easy Win

Showing a powerful punch and an amazing ground gaining ability, Coach Ben Barrett's first team yesterday handed Alliance High a 12-0 drubbing in a practice session at Reilly stadium during a continual down-pour.

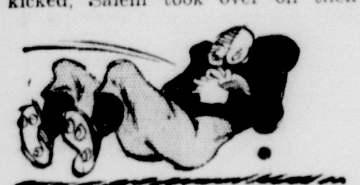

For the first time in 15 years a Salem team looked head and shoulders better than an Alliance aggregation in all departments—and that was for sure. Had it been dry, the score probably would have been much more one-sided.

Playing their first teams just one half, Coaches Barrett and Marcus Covert discovered a lot of things about their squads. Barrett had a good opportunity to develop his offense and Covert a chance to uncover defects in his defense.

That all came about when Salem took a heavy affection to the pigskin and failed to give Alliance any chance to make use of the oval, except for punting purposes. In the full first half of the game, when both No. 1 squads were playing, Salem gained a total of 182 yards as compared to six for Alliance. The Quakers piled up eight first downs in the half and didn't allow the visitors any.

The locals were inside the Alliance 10-yard line on three occasions but failed to score, once because of a fumble, again because of a clipping penalty, and finally as the half ended. On all three attempts a score was imminent, but breaks cost Salem additional tallies.

Early in the first quarter, after Alliance had tried three plays and kicked, Salem took over on their own 44. Ten plays carried the ball to the Alliance three, where Alliance recovered on the third down and goal to go when Jay Leach fumbled on the five-yard line.

An Alliance kick went to Leach on the 25 and he brought it back to the Aviator line before he was stopped. On the next play Ray Kelly skirted right end for the nine yards to score standing up.

Francis Lanney tried the conversion but it was wide. Alliance started after the kick-off from their own 25 and ran three plays to no avail. A kick by Jack Robinson was partially blocked by Quaker End Bill Stoult and Leach downed it on the Salem 49.

An incomplete pass made it second down and 10 for Salem. Lanney hit left tackle and made it to the Alliance 40 for another first down. On the next play Ray Kelly, showing plenty of speed and running finesse, swept left end for the rest of the field, but Umpire Ray Reasbeck ruled that he stepped out on the Alliance 10. The run was good for 30 yards and embodied some fine blocking by Salem's linemen.

On first down and the Alliance goal just 10 yards away, Franks tried tackle and picked up a yard. Lanney then faded back to the right to toss a pass and clipping was noticed on Salem on the play, moving the ball back to the Alliance 28.

Here three tries and an incomplete pass moved the ball to the Alliance 20, where the Aviators took over and kicked to Leach on the 50 after two line tries. Salem's next drive netted the second score after a march of 50 yards to pay dirt. Franks made two nice runs for 10 and 12 yards, respectively, and Lanney clicked off consistent gains. Lanney and Kelly placed the ball in scoring position with two drives of nine and four yards each before the hunky right halfback went over from the 10-yard line to make it 12-0. On this play Lanney did some excellent footwork to out-manuever would-be Alliance tacklers.

Lanney's conversion was low and the score remained, 12-0. After the kickoff to the Alliance 33, the Aviators elected to pass on the first play, but Jay Leach intercepted on his own 40 yard line and galloped 50 yards to the Aviator 10 before he was brought down.

CARDINALS PACING LEAGUES WITH TOP MARK IN FIELDING

National League Leaders Are Bettering Best Figure On Field

By JOE REICHER
NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—The St. Louis Cardinals, whose butterfliered fielding was a big factor in their world's series defeat by the New York Yankees last year, are currently fielding at a pace never before equaled in major league baseball.

Including games of Sept. 11, the Cardinals boast a team fielding percentage of .982, a point higher than the major league record of .981 set by the Cincinnati Reds in 1940. Of the 5,181 chances that came their way, they've committed only 92 miscues, 25 less than the Reds in their record-breaking year.

Of their 132 games to date, the Redbirds have played errorless ball in 58, probably a record.

Heading this group of glue-fingered phenoms is Marty Marion, probably the best fielding shortstop in baseball. Mr. Short-stop, or the Octopus, as he is known, has erred only 15 of his 631 chances for a .976 percentage, tops for shortfielders in the major leagues this year. He's also accepted 15 chances somewhat high on July 8 against Pittsburgh, and had 10 assists against Brooklyn 10 days later.

In Johnny Hopp, Stan Musial and Danny Littwhiler, the Cardinals probably own the surest and fastest fielding outfield trio in the majors. Only 13 errors have been charged against them. Littwhiler happens to be the only outfielder ever to go through an entire season without making an error, playing 151 faultless games in the field two years ago with the Phils. He also led the loop in fielding last year and owns the remarkable record of 187 consecutive games without an error, from Sept. 17, 1941, to May 30, 1943.

The Masonic bowling alleys will open for public use Thursday evening, Curt Phillips, manager, said today.

Although league competition does not get started there until Monday, Phillips said the alleys were being opened early to allow league bowlers to get in a little practice before they go "under fire" in league play.

Monday the American league opens operations there and the National Masonic Women's Electric Furnace and Federal leagues begin their matches throughout the week. Saturday evening is open to the public.

MACKMEN CAN PUT CRIMPS TO A FEW PENNANT CHANCES

Athletics Have Been Bad For Tigers All Year, May Drop Yanks

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
Connie Mack's lowly Athletics put the chill on Detroit all season long, winning 19 of 19 from the pennant contenders, but Tigertown today was 100 per cent behind Philadelphia as the Athletics tangled with the Yankees in a resumption of American league competition.

If the Mackmen, in seventh place, can trip New York, Detroit would vault into the lead by 008. The Yanks-Athletics tilt was the only game scheduled from Monday to Friday but they were due for two more in New York over the weekend while Boston played the Washington Senators, St. Louis entertained Chicago and Detroit visited Cleveland.

American league teams took heart from the Cardinals' continued slump as the Red Birds dropped a doubleheader to Pittsburgh for their ninth defeat in their last 13 starts. The Pirates downed the Red Birds in seven of their last eight meetings and the other was a tie.

No matter which team struggles through to oppose the Cardinals in the series, one fact was undisputed: The Athletics started the Browns on the downward path. After Luke Sewell's crew had swept three of four from the Yanks and divided four with the Red Sox, Mr. Mack's Russ Christopher earned two decisions and Jittery Joe Berry grabbed another as the summer-long leaders began to crack. Next St. Louis stop was Washington and another three out of four on the wrong side of the standings, followed by disaster in Detroit.

With nine more tilts scheduled against New York, St. Louis and Detroit, the grand old man of baseball who thought this "might be the year" for his Athletics still had a chance to dictate the outcome of the 1944 race.

Boston had finished its season business with the Athletics, scrambling for an even break in 22 games and St. Louis holds only a slender 10-9 edge. Only the Yankees, among the first division clubs, found Philadelphia good hunting, sweeping 13 of 19 and using the Mackmen as a lever to pry their way into the lead on Labor day by a double victory.

Rain washed out Cincinnati at Chicago and Philadelphia at New York doubleheaders in the National league after the Phils had taken a 2-0 lead in three innings of the opener. Boston at Brooklyn also was postponed.

The Cardinals fell before the Pirates' Fritz Ostermuller, 5-3, in the first game, and then dropped the nightcap, 6-5, as Preacher Roe took the decision over Bud Beyerly.

Attendance Shows Jump In American

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—With a break from the weatherman, the American league's turnstiles this season will be whirled by a million more customers than in 1943.

That's the estimate of President William Harridge, who disclosed yesterday that the league already has performed before 4,185,000 fans, surpassing the entire 1943 season attendance by 300,000.

Hysterical people sometimes lose their sense of smell.

Johnny Price, American Association's New Clown, Is Knocking Them Out With Antics

BY LEW BYRER
NEA Staff Correspondent

COLUMBUS — Johnny Price is giving the American association something entirely new in this war-harried season.

Prices comedy sequence has observers using superlatives in comparing him with Nick Atrock, Al Schacht, Germany Schaefer, Carl Sawyer, Rube Waddell and other intentional and unintentional baseball clowns.

Price, 29-year-old veteran of the smaller minors and the Army, was a pretty fair ballplayer as a kid on Memphis lots. He had several chances in the Southern Association and other Dixie leagues, but couldn't quite stand the gaff day in and day out.

He figured himself washed up, went to work. His back hurt, his arm creaked, his ankles swelled whenever he ran far or fast. Then a doctor told him he had bad teeth. A dentist went to work.

Price felt better, thought of another whirl in baseball, but got caught in the draft.

At an Army camp at Santa Anita, Calif., Price started pulling some of the routine stunts of every baseball pepper game, found that the GI's got a kick out of it. Encouraged, he added new ones.

Catches Flies In Jeep
Gradually they worked into the routine with which Price convulses American Association crowds.

Price catches and throws while flat on his back, in a wrestling position, suspended from the back-stop screen backward from ankle straps, hanging backward from a ladder, standing on his head and bent backward, facing the thrower in a football center's position.

He drives in a jeep full tilt with one hand, catches flies and scoops up grounders with the other. A stickler for perfection, he didn't unhook his jeep act until he had it down to where he caught 68 flies in a row.

Heralded Post-War Wonderland Nearer, Industrialist Claims

AP Features

That much trumpeted postwar utopia of self-winding can openers and other wonderful gadgets will be upon us much sooner than we think, say J. Gordon Lippincott, industrial designer, who himself has run up a neat little dream kitchen at the request of the Revere Copper & Brass Co.

"If Germany should surrender in November, you would see a flood of small household appliances—new 1945 models—in the stores by March," announces Lippincott. "Larger articles, such as stoves and refrigerators, would be plentiful a month or so later."

The designer states flatly that many manufacturing companies already are tooling up with postwar designs and are awaiting only the go signal to start producing all those things for the housewife. He adds:

"Both government and industry have led the public to believe that the first postwar models on the market would be the same old 1942 styles. This is not true, except in the automobile industry. There is too much competition in the household appliance field for any manufacturer to take a chance on producing prewar models."

Even if Japan keeps on fighting for another year after the surrender, of Germany, Lippincott says American industry can produce all needed war supplies and still keep the home front supplied with civilian goods.

99TH COUNTY FAIR OPENS AT LISBON

LISBON, Sept. 13.—Gates opened this morning on the 99th annual Columbiana county fair with the prospects of a large crowd on hand before the day and night program ends.

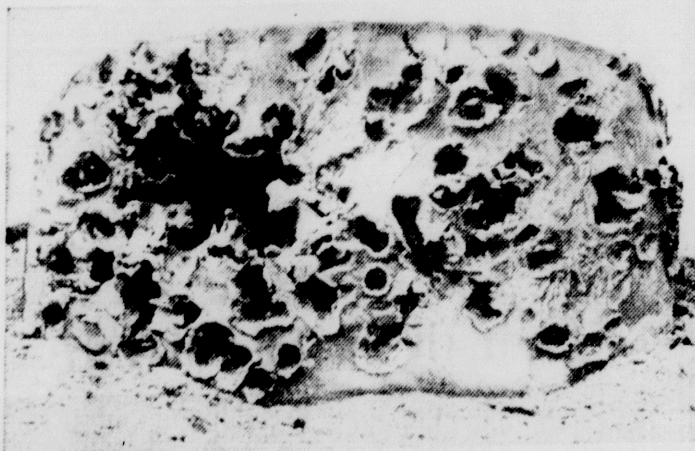

Yesterday, the first day of the fair, was mostly devoted to placing of entries and exhibits. All were in readiness this evening.

Despite the cool weather many were present this morning to witness the horse pulling contest in the ring in front of the grandstand. The contest for light teams, 3,000 pounds and under, was one of the first events. The racing program was to start at 1:30 with three races scheduled.

The East Palestine and Fairmount Children's home bands were to play this afternoon. Tonight Bob Steele and his trained horses will give an exhibition of trick and fancy riding, followed by an aerial act on the high pole before the grandstand. The fair will close each night with a fireworks display.

Tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. another horse pulling contest, or "Iron Derby" for heavy teams, 3,000 pounds and over, will be the first event on the program with Lisbon.

'Impregnable'—Until Yanks Came

Pity the poor Heinies who were snug in this concrete pillbox in France, confident that it was "impregnable." Yank tank gunners made Swiss cheese of it.

High school and New Waterford bands playing. The night fair opens every night at 7 with the grand parade of livestock in the center ring.

The county courthouse declared a half holiday today, closing at noon and will do the same tomorrow so that all employees may attend the fair.

Oct. 31 'Outside' Date For German Collapse

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Sept. 13.—United States war planning chiefs were reported tonight to have established Oct. 31 as the tentative "outside" date for the collapse of organized resistance in Germany.

Without discounting the possibility that victory may come more quickly, a responsible non-British source said the date had been pinpointed by the United States War Production board after consultations through usual military channels in plans for partial industrial reconversion from war to civilian production.

Police Probe Death Of Infant Found In Yard After Beating

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Sept. 12.—Detective Chief Leo Phillips today called the death of 21-months-old Ardella May Probst, who died shortly after she was found lying in her yard, a "mystery."

Phillips made the statement after he had questioned Mrs. Patricia Herron, the aunt who found the little girl, and her husband Harry. He also talked with the girl's mother, Mrs. Flora Probst, who was working in a war plant when the child was found bruised and apparently beaten.

Coroner John G. Gravis late yesterday returned a verdict of homicide after an autopsy had disclosed the child had suffered two ruptures of the liver and a brain hemorrhage.

He said "the child died of violence unlikely to be inflicted by children with whom she was playing. We suspect a human being, but we do not know where to turn."

Mrs. Herron said her daughter, Linda, 2, and Ardella were playing in the back yard and that she heard the little girl scream. She told police she ran out and picked the girl up and put her in bed.

Sometime later, she told police she noticed a discoloration on the child's face and telephoned Mrs. Probst. When the mother arrived from her work job they took the child to the children's hospital where she died.

The child's father, stationed at Camp Campbell, Ky., arrived home yesterday on special furlough.

The Probsts have a 10-month-old son, Darwin, J.

armored vehicle plant, an oil storage depot and a jet-propelled fighter plane field in central, southern and western Germany. Another force of 500 or so heavy bombers was reported striking up from the south.

Eisenhower warned of "high level and low level air attack at any hour of the day or night." Medium and light bombers opened the low level phase at dawn today and the leaves with their escort supplemented their blows with high level bombings.

Targets from the west included: Synthetic oil plants at Merseburg and Lutzendorf near Leipzig in central Germany and another at Ludwigshafen on the Rhine.

The Daimler-Benz plant at Sindelfingen, southwest of Stuttgart, which makes parts for trucks and air engines.

The Klockner Humboldt Deutz truck and armored vehicles factory at Ulm in southern Germany near Munich.

The Schwabisch hall airfield northeast of Stuttgart, which bases Messerschmitt-262 jet fighters.

An oil storage depot at Wiesenborn near Ulm.

The overnight raid upon Frankfurt, now less than 90 miles behind the German front line, was carried out in particularly great strength and was aimed directly at smashing the flow of Nazi reinforcements to the front.

airdrome runways were cratered and put out of service, barracks were burned and waterfront installations damaged. There was no interception.

No Interception

Halmahera, between Celebes and New Guinea, suffered an attack by a strong force of Liberators, which worked their havoc on airfields, supply dumps and defense positions. Many fires were started. Again, there was no interception.

Cream, south of Halmahera, was hit with 126 bomb tons which exploded on airdromes, oil installations and coastal defenses. Heavy blasts were set off and large fire started. There three parked enemy planes were destroyed, but anti-aircraft fire shot down an equal number of Allied aircraft.

During the Sunday and Monday strikes the Southwest Pacific raiders sank one freighter, beached another with a direct hit and destroyed or damaged four other vessels.

The reduction of Japanese forces trapped on British New Guinea continued, with MacArthur reporting 504 more killed and 116 taken prisoner. Twenty-five friendly nationals were liberated by Allied troops.

DEMOCRATS END CONVENTION; GOP TO OPEN THEIRS

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Sept. 13.—The Republicans moved in on the state capital today for an abbreviated state convention in the wake of a Democratic parley which built a platform it hoped would pull Ohio into the Roosevelt column.

The fireworks start today, with a last-minute pre-convention caucus of GOP party leaders. State Chairman Ed D. Schorr called county and central executive committees, county chairwomen and members of the state central and executive committees to a meeting at 3 p. m.

Formal opening of the new GOP state headquarters at 31 N. High st. is set for 8:30 p. m., and all state GOP candidates are expected to attend.

The one-day state convention opens tomorrow.

Echoes of the Democratic convention were just dying away today and for the most part the party platform—much of which embodied the ideas expressed by Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland, the party's gubernatorial candidate—met with approval.

Only dissenting voice loud enough to be heard was that of State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, lone Democratic office holder in the state house.

Ferguson assailed a plank promising "full safeguards for civil service employees," declaring:

"We should bend every effort to get rid of this bureaucratic civil service law. We should work for the abolishment of this nefarious law and the Hatch act. I want no part of civil service in my office."

The auditor said he had wanted another plank in the platform that was not there, one which would call for a central accounting bureau in the state auditor's office and which would "centralize all of the auditing that is now scattered throughout various departments."

Meanwhile, state Republican headquarters here announced that all proceedings of the GOP convention, including a speech by Gov. John W. Bricker candidate for vice president of the United States, would be broadcast from Memorial hall.

President Republican candidates are to be interviewed briefly in the half-hour period between 9:30 and 10:00 p. m., including Mayor James Garfield Stewart, of Cincinnati, gubernatorial nominee, and Robert A. Taft, candidate for reelection to the U. S. senate.

THE THEATER

The popular radio program "emceed" by Phil Baker is the basis of a motion picture, "Take It or Leave It," which shows at the State tonight and Thursday.

Besides Phil Baker, the cast includes Phil Silvers, Edward Ryan, Marjorie Massow, Stanley Prager and Nana Bryant.

The story concerns the efforts of a young sailor to retain a famous obstetrician for his wife when their baby is born. The famous medic's fee is too large for the sailor's modest purse, so he tries to earn enough by taking part in a radio quiz show.

Showing at the Grand Thursday through Saturday will be: Johnny Mack Brown's newest western, "Partners of the Trail," and "Machine Gun Mama," featuring Armida, El Brendel and Wallace Ford.

Mink Cross-Breeding Produces Shaded Fur

It will be possible to buy a mink coat to match your hair, eyes, complexion, if you have the necessary $2,000 to $21,000, he said.

The production of fur coat available for purchase will fall will be 10 per cent less than last year, or approximately 50 per cent below the pre-Pearl Harbor output, Harmon said.

Port Battles Continue

The Canadians in the west had reached nearly to the Netherlands border after capturing Brugge (Bruges) and advancing eastward 10 miles to the Leopold canal. Poles in the Canadian army thrust 20 miles from Gent and reached St. Nikolaas, working on north toward Holland, a front dispatch said.

Battles continued for the ports of Brest, Boulogne, Calais, and Dunkerque. The prisoner count at captured Le Havre rose to 8,000.

Hate and fear were the Americans' welcome from a people whose dream of world tyranny was shattered and whose homeland defenses were under assault or threatened assault from the Netherlands border north of Aachen to the now broken Moselle river buffer line in France.

The vast manpower reserves of America were pouring into the attack. Supreme headquarters announced the American Ninth army under command of Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson had taken its place in the operational command in France.

This army's sector has not yet been disclosed. It is the sixth Allied army to be identified in the combat area. Others are the American First, Third and Seventh armies and the British Second and the Canadian First armies. American forces involved are the mightiest ever assembled on one fighting front.

Clearing the way ahead of the American First army columns probing the Siegfried defenses at two points, U. S. Ninth army force fighter bombers went out in relays beginning at dawn for a ceaseless pounding of concrete strongpoints in the path of the advance.

They ranged both sides of the Siegfried line and swept as far south as Metz and Nancy where the U. S. Third army poured armor and artillery across the Moselle or a 15-mile wide front in a power buildup for a sweep on Saarbrücken and Strasbourg.

The War Today

ler broke his back. The Moscovites won with what Sewell aptly describes as their classic strategy of withdrawing and then striking when the Germans were over-extended.

Then there have been numerous cases in which Allied generalships have delivered a telling blow at a vital point after leading the Germans to believe the attack was coming somewhere else. That happened when American troops on the memorable eighth of November, 1942, swarmed ashore at Algiers, Oran and Casablanca in North Africa, while the first Nazis were expecting the invasion to come at Dakar, in French Africa. This also happened in Italy.
